
Hunt, Tunley, Phelps, Nichols

Posted by Lawson - 2008/07/15 00:16

I have tracked my g g g grandfather Obediah Hunt back to Bisley but the legions with that surname in and around the area make it difficult to see who might be related to whom. He was born in Tunley, which I assume is/was part of Bisley, although it does not seem to be on any modern map. His father Samuel was an innkeeper in 1861 at the Labourers Arms in Tunley. Is that still there?

Samuel's wife Ann is also hard to pin down as she was a Phelps, and there seem to be even more of them than Hunts, so I have made a guess at her lineage. Two of Obediah's children by his first marriage to Caroline Nichols were also at the Labourers Arms - Samuel Thomas and Albert but don't appear in any subsequent census. Two other children were with the Nichols family at Summer Street, Stroud, but rejoined Obediah when he settled in Cardiff.

Any potential connections welcome. They are all on my Genes Reunited tree.

Re:Hunt, Tunley, Phelps, Nichols

Posted by g bushrod - 2008/07/21 19:21

My mother inlaw is related to Obediah Hunt. Her grandmother was Adeline Annie. I have only just started this side of the family tree. I got Adelines birth certificate this morning, I came on this site to see if the Labourers Arms was still standing! I also have my tree on genes but haven't put this part of my tree on yet, so any information you have will be great

Re:Hunt, Tunley, Phelps, Nichols

Posted by g bushrod - 2008/07/21 19:21

My mother inlaw is related to Obediah Hunt. Her grandmother was Adeline Annie. I have only just started this side of the family tree. I got Adelines birth certificate this morning, I came on this site to see if the Labourers Arms was still standing! I also have my tree on genes but haven't put this part of my tree on yet, so any information you have will be great

Re:Hunt, Tunley, Phelps, Nichols

Posted by Lawson - 2008/07/21 21:26

Contact me via david@davidlawson.co.uk and we can arrange access to my Genes tree.

Re:Hunt, Tunley, Phelps, Nichols

Posted by Karianne Fisher - 2008/08/04 17:40

Hi there,

I am also distantly related to the Hunt Phelps family and have there tree on Genes reunited for viewing. The Phelps side has been extensively researched by a Phelps member of the family so I am pretty sure the lineage is correct.

Please feel free to get in touch

kind regards

karianne

Re:Hunt, Tunley, Phelps, Nichols

Posted by Lawson - 2008/08/04 19:56

Karianne Fisher wrote:

Hi there,

I am also distantly related to the Hunt Phelps family and have there tree on Genes reunited for viewing. The Phelps side has been extensively researched by a Phelps member of the family so I am pretty sure the lineage is correct.

Please feel free to get in touch
kind regards
karianne

We actually chatted about this on Genes Reunited some time ago. I know the Phelps side is well researched but I was hoping to get more on the Hunt side. I got back as far as the 1841 census, when Samuel was an agricultural labourer and 1851 when he kept the Labourers Arms in Tunley But there are so many Hunts in the area that I'm not sure who was related to whom. I'm also still hoping to find out where the pub was and whether it is still there, even if no longer in use, as I'd love to visit.

=====

Re:Hunt, Tunley, Phelps, Nichols

Posted by cheryl phelps - 2008/08/05 21:41

i have ann phelps in my tree it is on genes reunited website

hope this help you

cheryl

=====